Marysville School Board named Board of the Year

The Marysville School Board was named Board of the Year at the Washington State School Directors (WSSDA) annual conference November 17th. “Marysville School Board received the honor of being named a Board of Distinction last year. Being named Board of the Year this year is certainly a tribute to our board and their focus on the district’s four year goals, mission and vision. Their commitment to student achievement has made a big difference for our students and our staff. Long term goals, along with board support and encouragement, allow schools to focus on student achievement,” says Superintendent Nyland.

Each year, WSSDA honors outstanding school boards that demonstrate understanding of their leadership role and follow through on their responsibilities, while showing concern for the educational excellence for all students.

The application process is based on the Washington Effective School Board Standards which ask boards to:

- Show how their actions align with effective board governance practices;
- Document their focus on educational excellence and equity for all students;
- Identify how they create conditions for student and staff success; and
- Share their commitment to continuous improvement and accountability.

Marysville was recognized as Washington board of the year for school districts of 9000 students or more.

Congratulations to Chris Nation, President, Wendy Fryberg, Vice President, and Directors Dr. Tom Albright, Cindy Erickson, and Pete Lundberg.
